CHURCHES

Ratley Church, St Peter ad Vincula (St Peter in Chains).

A church was recorded here in 1298, but the present building dates back to 1340, and is now one of the "Six Parishes" – Combroke, Kineton, Radway, Ratley, Shotteswell and Warmington. Services are held in rotation at varying times in the six parish churches.

Details are available in the monthly "Parish Link" (delivered to homes in the Parish) and on church notice-boards.

PARISH EVENTS AND ACTIVITIES

Many of these take place in Ratley Village Hall.

Website: <https://www.ratleyvillagehall.co.uk>

The Trustees meet 6 times a year plus the AGM in July.

The Village Hall reopened in March 2010 after a refurbishment utilising “green technology”. Details of events held in the Hall can be found on notice-boards in the Parish, (Ratley Village Hall, Ratley High Street post box, Edgehill post box), Upton estate office or from “flyers” through your letterbox.

Most years these activities include:

New Year's Eve Party

New Year's Day Hockey Match (Ratley Recreation Ground)

Family Summer Barbecue and Games

Flower and Produce Show in August

Harvest Festival and Supper in October

5th November Bonfire & Firework Display (Ratley Rec)

Other Village Hall occasional activities have included:

Attic Auctions, Brunches, Concerts, Dances and Films. These are often organised to raise funds for Parish causes, including the maintenance of the Village Hall, the Church or the Youth Club. As well as the main hall the Village Hall also has a kitchen and separate drinks servery, and two meeting rooms. It is used as a general meeting place as well as being a venue for our many clubs and societies. It can be hired for private functions, including children's and family parties.

To book the Village Hall contact Lisa Curtlin 01295 670298

DID YOU KNOW?

- ❖ Ratley, Edgehill and Upton is the highest parish in Warwickshire, at 200m (660ft) above sea level.
- ❖ The Civil War Battle of Edgehill wasn't fought at Edgehill, but on the plain below, beyond Radway, on October 23rd 1642. Although about 1500 men were killed, neither Royalists nor Parliamentarians won. There is an exhibition about the battle in Radway church. The site of the battle isn't open to the public, as it is on MOD land. However, you can get a good view of the battleground from
- ❖ The Castle Inn, Edgehill – which was never a castle at all! It was a tower folly built in the mid-18th century by the gentleman architect Sanderson Miller, whose home was Radway Grange. He wanted somewhere to entertain his friends, which would also be an “eyecatcher” on the hilltop ridge, visible from his house.
- ❖ There was a castle at Ratley, built in the mid-12th century and consisting of a central mound, complete with a wooden tower (motte) on stone foundations, and surrounded by two stone-built embankments (baileys). It lasted for less than 100 years, but the mound can still be seen behind Mount Farm, High Street Ratley.
- ❖ The name “Ratley” has nothing to do with rats, but comes from the Saxon name “Rotelei” meaning “red field”. “Upton” means the “high settlement”, whilst “Edgehill” is a recent name; formerly it was known as “Ratley Grange”.

- ❖ The Manor of Upton was originally a hamlet within Ratley Parish. It lost its population in the early 16th century when its open fields were enclosed, and a substantial house was built there. In the 17th century this was replaced by a new house in the Classical style, which passed through several families. In the 18th and 19th centuries it was used as a hunting lodge, rented out or left empty. In 1927 it was bought by the second Lord Bearsted (of Shell petrol fame) to house his collection of porcelain and pictures, and was given in 1948 to the National Trust. For details of Upton House, its gardens, opening times and events, ring 01295 670266 or see the website:

<http://www.nationaltrust.org.uk/upton-house-and-gardens>.

- ❖ You can find out more about the parish by following the Millennium Sculpture Trail, which represents the four elements:

Earth - the obelisk at Hornton Quarry Workshops, Edgehill

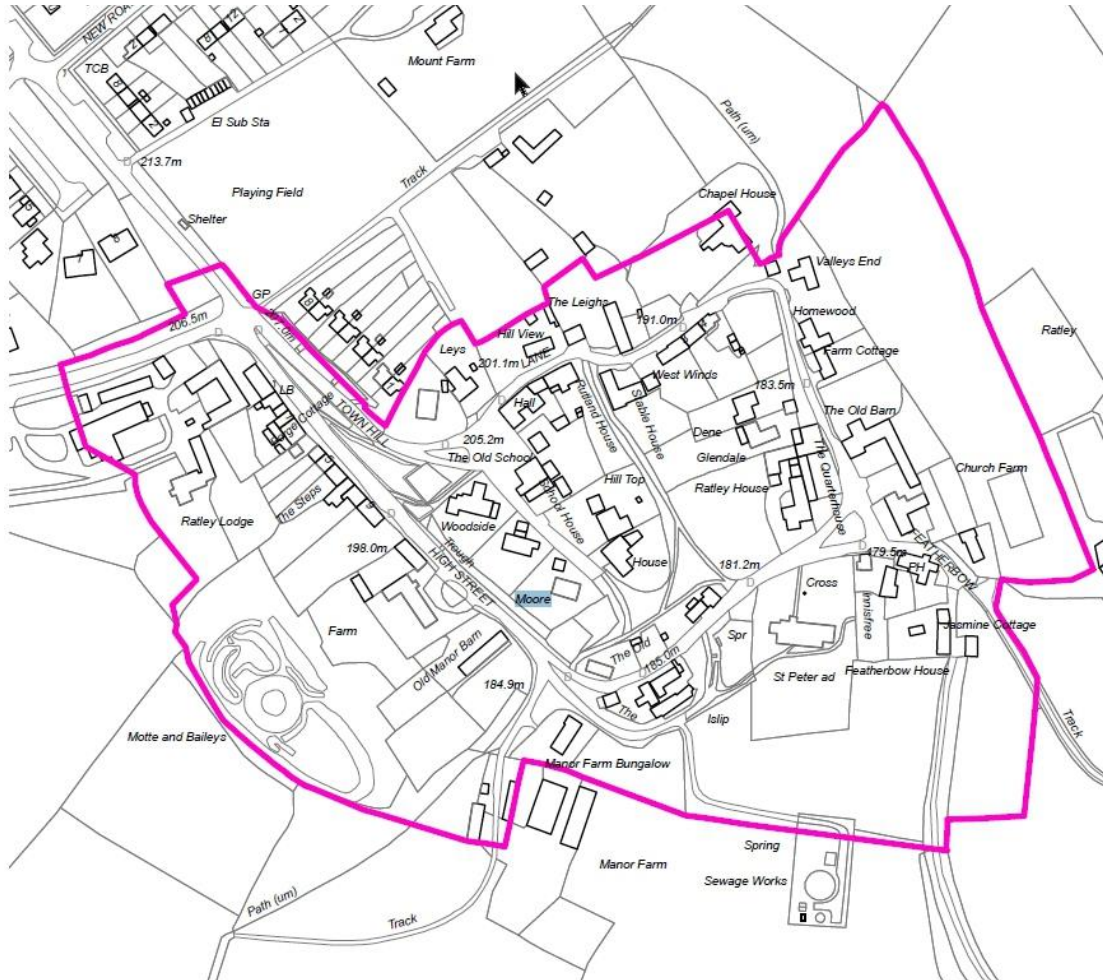

Air - the weather vane on Ratley Village Hall, and the remains of Ratley Castle (“airily situated on its ridge”!)

Fire - the Lower Recreation Ground in Ratley, site of the annual bonfire, and the time-capsule buried in 2001 for future parishioners.

Water - the Goggs spring next to Ratley Church in which you can see the Millennial font cover showing all four monuments.

LIVING & WORKING IN A CONSERVATION AREA

Part of Ratley is a Designated Conservation Area

It has several listed buildings. To find out more see:

<http://www.britishlistedbuildings.co.uk/england/warwickshire/ratley+and+upton#.V5SfWY-cEU>

Conservation areas exist to protect the special architectural and historic interest of a place - in other words the features that make it unique and distinctive. This explains what it means to own a building in a conservation area.

How being in a conservation area can affect you:

Although conservation areas mean some extra planning controls and considerations, these exist to protect the historic and architectural elements which make the place special. They are most likely to affect owners who want to work on the outside of their building or any trees on their property.

Your House

Being in a conservation area might mean that your house is affected by special controls (called 'Article 4 Directions'), which restrict work you can normally do without planning permission such as replacing a door or window or altering gutters and downpipes.

These controls are tailored to each area by the council, and are put in place when there are particular elements of local buildings they want to protect. Find out if an Article 4 Direction applies to your area by contacting your local planning authority.

Trees

If you want to cut down, top or lop any but the smallest of trees in a conservation area you must notify your local planning authority six weeks before work begins. The authority will then consider the contribution the tree makes to the character of the area and if necessary create a Tree Preservation Order (TPO) to protect it.

Demolition

If you live in a conservation area and want to demolish your building, you will need Planning Permission. If the building is listed you will also need Listed Building Consent.

Who do I ask about changes?

Your local planning authority will tell you what you can do to your home if you live in a conservation area. They can tell you if there are special controls in place and explain what permissions will be needed.

Many local planning authorities prepare Conservation Area Appraisals for their conservation areas. An appraisal outlines the history of an area and explains what makes it special. It also provides some general guidelines on managing and carrying out development in the conservation area.

In addition, local planning authorities will sometimes produce Supplementary Planning Documents for their conservation areas. These show how the authority intends to manage the area in the long term.

It is worth checking with your local planning authority to see if any such documents exist for your conservation area.

The financial benefit of conservation areas

People value conservation areas for their distinctiveness, visual appeal and historic character and research by the London School of Economics and Historic England has found that this value is reflected in the price of properties in conservation areas.

Generally they cost more and appreciate in price more than properties in other areas, even after adjusting for location and other factors.
